"IN MEMORIAM

On Saturday, July 23rd, 1921, Mayor Horace T. Jones died at Las Vegas Hospital.

His brief career in that office served only as an index as to his abilities and character as a public man. Had he retained his health and strength, judging from what he had already accomplished, it is hard to place a limit upon what his achievements might have been had he lived the allotted years of man. But in full bloom of early middle life, he was taken from us, and the home and places in the midst of which he lived and loved, and was in turn loved and honored, shall know him no more forever.

We, also, his associates shall miss him from our circle, feeling always that though his untimely passing the community and State has lost a gifted, useful and promising public man.

When Mayor Horace T. Jones passed away, a useful life was ended, and the warm expressions of grief and tributes of respect paid by his fellow citizens affixed the final seal to a successful and honorable career.

His industry kept pace with his capacity, and his integrity was never questioned. He went to rest leaving behind him a record which should be an
